ing our PSL clubs.

However, I am afraid that once again, the implementation of this policy may not be preceded by a thorough examination of the problem. The decision will be made by administrators, many of whom seldom if ever see a PSL match; they will simply settle on a quota number, say three or eight.

I wonder if our permanently settled coaches will be consulted: the views of an Eddle Thomson, John Margaritis, Len McKendry, Willie Wallace, Rale Rasic and a few others sought?

I think they are in an initiately better position to judge how many temporary-visa imports our top clubs need to maintain their standards, how and at what intervals the quota should be reviewed and reductions.

Len McKendry: 'Victorian would have reached World

John Yzendoorn 'the complete plan

Few coaches in Australia have made as great an impact as Len McKendry in as short

That reputation was but the construction of the very large coach of the Victorian State team which was by far the oest in Australia.

Victoria's results under McKendry were, 1979: 0-1 v. Wisla Crakow, 2-0 v. South Australia, 2-4 v. Norwich City, 1-0 v. Partizan Belgrade, 2-3 v. New York Cosmos, 1980: 2-1 v. Red Star Belgrade, 4-0 v. NSW, 0-0 v. South Australia, 0-2 v. Ac Milan, 1981: 1-1 v. Dinamo Zagreb, 1-2 v. New Zealand, 1982: 0-2 v. Hungary. Of the players he used in the State team, John Yzendoorn, Yakka Banovic, Alan Davidson, Tommy Cumming, Jamie Paton, Jim Campbell, and George Christopoulos went on to play for the Socceroos.

Jim Campbell, and George Christopoulos went on to play for use Socceroos.

Under McKendry, Heldelberg won the PSL grand final in 1880 and was runner up in the league and Philips Cup as well.

Returning from Croatia in round 16 of 1891, McKendry took over Heldelberg once more when it was one point from the bottom. The team ended the season undefeated in the last eight games to finish eighth.

McKendry, who refuses to divulge his age — he's probably around 40 — gained his English FA coaching budge in 1973. After doing coaching with colleges in Michigan, U.S., and working on coaching courses with the FA in England, McKendry received offers from Saudi Arabia and Australia, through Brian Green who then was coach of the Socceroos.

ofters from Saudi Arabia and Australia, through Brian Green who then was coach of the Socceroos.

He decided on Australia, and arrived in 1976, to coach Marrick-ville in the NSW State League for two seasons, following which he was appointed Victorian Director of Coaching in 1978. He held that position until 1980 but continued to coach the State team until he was dropped last week by the VSF, apparently over differences with some VSF officials.

As a player, he spent three seasons with Watford, playing midfield and striker. He later played as a defender with Wealdstone in the English Southern League. In this interview with LAURIE SCHWAB, McKendry discusses his philosophy of soccer, his players at Heldelberg, his views on the national coaching set-up, and he is merciless in his criticism of former national coach Rudi Gutendorf.

of former national coach Rudi Gutendorf.

SCHWAB: Tell us about the circumstances surrounding your decision to quit your job with the VSF and take up the offer from Heidelberg.

McKENDRY I always had said that I would do the VSF job for only two years because I was keen to get back into team coaching. If you let your competitive instinct die, then there's something wrong with you as a coach. Pat Bannon and Jimmy Rooney were Heidelberg's joint player-coaches following the departure of John Margaritis. Heidelberg had been chasing me for quite sometime. So had Wollongong, but Heidelberg was more consistent in its efforts, so I finally agreed to take over. When I joined, Heldelberg was second in the league and it was most important to maintain consistency for we were in the running for all three trophies. Their method of play had been adapted from that of the State team, because so many of their players were also in the Victorian side.

SCHWAB: What then, did you regard as your main McKENDRY: To convince the players of the need for prolong-ed possession of the ball. They still were trying to play on the break a bit. Arthur McMillan and Pai Bannon were two who adapted particularly well to the possession play, even though neither was in my State team.

SCHWAB: How long did it take for you to finally perfect the style you were trying to implement?

McKENDRY: Well, it was there, but often only in spells. I think that despite a few recent setbacks, it's probably more consistent now than ever before.

SCHWAB: Your coaching style and your methods have been picked up by quite a few who did their coaching course under you, isn't that right? Let's take John Gar-McKENDRY: I guess that's right. John does have the same beliefs, but you'd better ask him about that. It is true to say that many coaches tend to copy us and suffer by it because they don't understand the principles involved in our play.

SCHWAB: Then you had better describe the way Heldelborg plays.

McKENDRY. I believe soccer is a game of passing and supporting. It's important to make it as easy as possible for the man receiving the ball. And contrary to what some people claim, we do not play possession only at the back, but rather all over the field. We simply are a passing and supporting team, and we play to feet. While it sounds simple, it needs a lof of work and it requires intelligent players. Joe Picioane, who was in my State team, never understood it even after a long period. Many other players don't understand it either. It suits our team, but it may not suit others. I've never advocated that every team should play the way we do, but it's been successful for us. It's from Europe that I adapted it. West Germany and Holland are the biggest influence on my philosophy about soccer. The West German team that won the European championship in 1972 served to provide me with my apprenticeship. The work they did inspired me. I was very impressed with the support given by and given to those very well-known and well-respected players. That West German is the best I have seen anywhere.

SCHWAB: You stick very rigidly to your playing style, but if you were to join a different club where you did not have players of the Heidelberg mould, what would you do?

McKENDRY: I'd have to change the style. I'd have to get the players doing what they are capable of.

SCHWAB: Your style first became evident in the Victorian State team, and it was successful for you there . . .

torian State team, and it was successful for you there...
McKENDRY Yes, even though I selected lesser-known players, like Yzendoorn, Tront, Short, Gilder, Paton, even Cumming who hadn't been a representative player previously I chose all those because they could adapt to the style I wanted, and they were willing to work at perfecting it. I have explained so often that against top teams from overseas, you simply cannot afford to give the ball away. Otherwise you are made to pay for it. Gary Cole learned a lot of things within this framework. He now is as good a receiver of the ball as you will find anywhere.

SCHWAB: Some of the players emerged as stars after they had worked with you. John Yzendoorn for example.

McKENDRY I saw him play on my first day in Melbourne. He was at Slavia then. What impressed me was the completeness of the player. After half an hour I couldn't believe that such a complete player was playing in this standard of football.

SCHWAB: Were you instrumental in getting him to Heidelberg? Isn't it a fact that you recommended him to the committee even before you became coach? McKENDRY I recommended Yzendoorn as well as Jamie Paton of Slavia and Yakka Banovic of Croatia.

SCHWAB: Has Yzendoom improved even further in these past few seasons?

these past row seasons?

McKENDRY I still say he is the most complete player in Australia, outside the best strikers. He has calmness under pressure, dedication of the highest order, application and he thinks deeply about the game. He's also two-footed and he's a magnificent tackler, he's an exceptional challenger in the air and probably the best passer of a ball in Australian soccer.

McKENDRY It would be catastrophic if Yzendoorn is not in the national team. The tapes incident must not be allowed to mar his international career. I believe it was done out of sheer frustra-tion. I think he just felt fr

Len McKendry - coach of Heidelberg-Alex-

SCHWAB: You mentioned Gary Cole earlier. Have you been able to improve his ball skills?

McKENDRY: Brian Green, the former national coach, thought Cole epitomised the Australian player — cumbersome, falling over the ball, that sort of thing. Gary perhaps suffered because we didn't get hold of him until he was 22 or so. However, now he is controlling and receiving the ball much better. Perhaps lit's too leat to make him as proficient at these chings as Jamile Paton, for some profice of the profit of th

SCHWAB: Better than Marshall Soper of APIA? He's getting all the publicity at the moment.

McKENDRY: That's all he's doing. Cole is much faster — the fastest player in Australia. He's brave and he has awesome shooting power. His standard of control in the right areas is good enough for me. He does drift into playing flicks, which don't work for him, so he has to keep his practice up.

SCHWAB: Paton and Cole have been a dynamic due in front of goal, but if a striker is judged on the goals he scores, Paton must be a disappointment to you so far this McKENDRY: Yes, that's true. He hasn't been scoring. But we have solved that problem through Jim Campbell. I had anticipated it anyway. Gary went through a poor patch last season, during which Jamie scored the goals. Now that Jamie is down a bit, Gary and Jim Campbell are making up for it. I've been using Campbell in a freer role, further forward. One of the areas in which he was lacking early was his defensive application. We corrected that, but found he suddenly was putting too much into the defensive side of his game. We weren't seeing his explosive side in attack. No we've pushed him further up to get him among the goals again. In that position, at this stage, Campbell is the No. I player in Australia. His work rate is tremendous, we have added endurance to his game and he now can dominate a match for long periods.

SCHWAB: Don Macleod arrived from England last season with the experience of having been captain of Nottingham Forest's second team, yet you kept him on the bench until this year's Ampol Cup, when he displaced Bob Provan. Why did it take so long?

McKENDRY When he first arrived I saw Macleod as a disciplined person with a lot of character but he was yet another product of what I call the wastage of English football. He did not know what pressure was, he didn't know how to support the ball, how to hold a man without support, and he tended to dive in with his tackles. I felt that if he was exposed as a centre back in the PSL he could find it tough, so I introduced him slowly. He now knows where to attack the ball and when to be more patient.

SCHWAB: You negotiated with David Jones before he ined Hellas. Would it have been a choice between joined Hellas. Would Jones and Macleod?

McKENPRY: Well, Jones impressed me and I felt if Macleod couldn't do the job, Jones could. I had felt for some time there was a weakness in the middle of our defence because we had conceded a large number of goals from crosses. I was looking for a mentally and physically more committed player.

McKENDRY: Well, I couldn't affort to buy Jones after Macleod had proved himself. But, if an injury does occur, we can bring in a young player from the second team. I don't want to mention him just yet.

McKENDRY: You're right. I want to add to it very shortly, but I have to consider the financial aspect. I also have to be particular about whom we choose because of the style we play.

SCHWAB: What's holding up your recruiting plans?
McKENDRY. I'm waiting for the retained lists to be finalised in England and Sotland. I'll be making moves within a month. Then we'll work or recommendations from my contacts in England. I don't want another experience like the one we had with Joe McGrory and Liam Monagle who joined from Ireland last year.

SCHWAB: Looking to the future of Heidelberg, are you planning on replacements for the older players, like Jimmy Rooney and Arthur McMillan? And, in view of what you said earlier, are you looking at perhaps replacing Paton?

McKENDRY: Paton played well last year and although he's had a lapse, I feel he's turning the corner. As for Rooney and McMillan, I wish every player had their commitment. It's still hard to talk about replacing them but we'll have to do it eventually. I've got to look to a new midfield player anyway. Ideally, we should have a squad of 14 or 15, but we've got only 12 at the moment. Added players would have to work hard to fight their way into the team and they'd have to compete against Rooney and McMillan as well as against the other players. They'll have to prove they are better than the ones we have. In the meantime we'll be teaching them what we want from them.

SCHWAB: In your team, Rooney is in the play mucless than he was with his previous clubs — Marconi, fo example. Why have you given him this new role?

McKENDRY: I felt in the past he did a lot of unnecessary run-ning, so in the State team, I made him a channel player on the left. He dominated the left side for me, and that's the role I give him at Heldelberg. That's what I tried to persuade Gutendorf to do with him. I used Campbell in the middle of the midfleid because of his ability to link with Cole and Paton. Campbell really is a forward. In fact he was a winger with Oxford United in Eng-land.

SCHWAB: You must regard Jeff Olver and Charile Yankos as two of your biggest successes, because they are young players who have developed into top-liners.

McKENDRY: They are everything Australian soccer is all about Both represented Victoria at under 18 and under 19 levels, both served their apprenticeships in the reserves and were slowly blooded into the PSL after having learned their trade. It was delightful to have them in the State team against Hungary and it was disgraceful that they did not get the credit they deserved in that match. Olver was faultiess and Yankos also played well. I was proud of them: I must mention Jack Reilly for the amount of work he's put in on Olver.

SCHWAB: Jimmy Rooney coached your second team last year. Is it a feeding ground for your PSL elde?

McKENDRY: Well, Jimmy used the same principles of play, but it's a very physical league down there. What we should look at is producing perhaps one player a year. And of course that's part of the coach's job. You can't huy players forever.

SCHWAB: Which teams will be your strong ents in the run to the championship?

nents in the run to the chemplonahlp?

McKENDRY. It's a bit early to say. We needed a good start in the first six games and we managed to do that, but really, even JUST could win the title, it's so open. You can jump or fall four or five places with one result. Still, Sydney City will hit a very consistent streak and they'll be the biggest danger. They have very good players, with the experience of having won the title, which is very important. As for APIA and Olympic, we'll have to wait and see.

SCHWAB: Getting back to that Victoria v Hungary ame, you reacted very angrily to Press criticism of that game, you rea match. Why?

McKENDRY: I had taken pains to explain to the Press about how we should play. We played the same way against Red Star, which also was early in the year. There was minimimal time for preparation, Hellas refused to release Laumets and Davidson and our physical condition wasn't what it should have been, because the players had been playing only 70-minute Ampol. Cup games. We had to play a possession game, we had to play it $80 km. I was criticised for having so many Heidelberg players in, but they always have been there.

SCHWAB: What about Don Macleod? He hadn't played all the previous season, and there was a feeling that Stuart Cannell of Ajax, who you called in against New Zealand when you were short of players late last year, should have been given another chance.

McKENDRY OK, it was a toss-up between the two, and it came down to a matter of comparative form. On form, Macleod was better, he's physically stronger and at that stage of the season, he had done more hard training that Ajax had. Of course I always have wanted to use Steve Blair, but he was not available.

SCHWAB: You had Jack Reilly as the reserve goalkee-per shead of Dennis Boland of JUST, even though Reilly has not played for ages.

McKENDRY. It was a simple matter of experience. What would have happened had we been forced to substitute the goal-keeper during the game? Who is more experienced than Reilly? He is in fact, the goalkeeper coach at Heidelberg. I think I saved Boland a lot of headaches. Had he come on in a tight situation it would have been very hard for him.

SCHWAB: Didn't you consider Boland at all as one of the two State keepers?

the two State keepers?

McKENDRY: No. Peter Laumets was the No.1—very loyal, very under-rated — after having been reserve to Banovic. In two games for me he was faultless and he earned his place. Olver had to be given a go because he is extremely talented and also young, and he did very well against Hungary. There has to be convention. How can players have faith in a system if it turns out there is no system?

SCHWAB: Many fans were clamoring for an all-star State team against Hungary. Why do you oppose all-star McKENDRY: Victoria had them for 100 years and almost never won a game. No-one, it appears, ever sat down and made a determined effort to have a successful State team. The 1972 German team formed the basis of the 1974 team that won the World Cup. Argentina has retained the nucleus of its 1978 team for this year's World Cup. I decided to have a set team and no-one can argue with the success we had, with the prestige we built up for this State, and with the amount of players we produced.

¿ SCHWAB: As your Victorian players figured promi-nently in the national team last year, can you tell us how you see the national team situation at the moment?

McKENDRY: I'm still very bitter that Australia did not qualify for the World Cup. They should have walked in. The Victorian State team would have walked in! I've been critical of the New Zealand team in the past but I've got to priase the New Zealanders for the faith they showed in their players. They kept them together and they had an effective team unit, which is what it's all about. Rale Rasic did the same in 1974 and he was successful as a nearly.

SCHWAB: Have you any criticism of Rudi Gutendo McKENDRY: My criticism of him is never-ending.

SCHWAB: We'll get back to that. What about Jim noulder when he was national coach?

Shoulder when he was national coach?

McKENDRY: Inexperience is what let him down. You can take these Jobs too young. Perhaps he took over a side that was on its way out, as well. I am a far more experienced campaigner now than I was three years ago, for an apprenticeship in club soccer. With the experience he has had now, Jim Shoulder would be more successful if he had the national team today. You can't fault his soccer knowledge. He had a bit of bad luck too — like the missed penalty against Iran in Melbourne — but he did the best he could, which cannot be said about Gutendorf.

SCHWAB: It was open knowledge that you and Gutendorf did not get along. Why?

McKENDRY: He should not have feared me the way he did.
Australia's best result was the 22 draw with Czechoslovakia in McBourne and nine of my State players were in his squad the time. Had he used my help more, we would have qualified for SCHWAB: Were there any particular clashes?

McKENDRY: No, there were no cross words or anything like that but he feared me through certain players on whom he felt I had a big influence. Maybe he knew that they knew that he didn't know. I told him that part-time players couldn't match the pros in running power but that there were ways around that, If you played possession. But he just wanted to defend, so he went for man-to-man marking and abandoned midfield play altogether. He also played the classic Press pame. If you use every player that the Press picks, you stay on the Press's ide. If you don't, you altenate part of the Press. In the end he resorted just to wild clearances but against an organised side like New Zealand, you find the ball coming back at you straight away.

SCHWAB: Did you aspire to the national coach's job?

McKENDRY: No, I was happy with my contract with the VSF at the time. But maybe he was worried that he wasn't getting as much attention in the Victorian Press as I was.

SCHWAB: Were you upset that Gutendorf used Tony Boggi and a few others as his Victorian right-hand men, rather than using you?

McKENDRY: No. not at all

SCHWAB: Are there other reasons that Gutendorf regarded you as an enemy?

McKENDRY: Look, I had hours of enjoyable conversation with the man about life in general. There was no reason. I felt though, Victoria had a top team and we easily could have blended in the Sharnes and Krncevics, but he had not intention of going along starnes and Krncevics, but he had not intention of going along at the time. Why? What's more, he took my players and according to the time. Why? What's more, he took my players and according to the time of the time type even though they were being successful with a different style.

SCHWAB: How do you see the current situation with the national teams?

McKENDRY: I tried to select for the State team only players who could go on to play for Australia, or at least players who were able to develop further. NSW also adopted that policy. Now apparently we're trying to develop a full national team from the youth side, using the best of the younger players from the former Socceroos. I agree with Les Scheinflug in that regard.

SCHWAB: But the Socceroos have no games planned

McKENDRY: Well, it's hard this year because of the World Cup. Australia, though, should have played against Hungary, and there should be games after the World Cup.

SCHWAB: How will this lull in international ex-

McKENDRY: It will leave us with only two years to prepare for the next World Cup. Time is valuable. You need all the time you can get. Had we had a couple of games so far this year, there would be a shape to the team right now — something you could work on.

SCHWAB: What about your future? Can you see your-self as national coach?

self as national coach?

McKENDRY. They'll never look to a Victorian. They seem to think the world stops at Wollongong. I like Australia as a place to live. Heidelberg wants me to sign a contract until November 1983 and I see that as my duty to them. I have loyalty to the club and I feel excited about what is about to happen. But I don't know about after 1983. The politics in Australian soccer depress me at times. We have Banovic, Krncevic and Kay playing overseas which proves we have the talent. Olympic has so many home-grown players, and they're being rewarded with big crowds. But we generally are self-destructive. The strong points are negated by that destructiveness I wish we had the unity of the VFL So, after 1983, I'll have to look at coaching overseas. I've gained a heil of a lot of experience and it's whetted my appetite. I look at what I've done with Victoria and Heidelberg and I'd like to do it all over again with someone else. Long-term however, Australia will be my home.

SCHWAB: Is there co-operation among coaches or do they tend to be jeelous and afraid of each other?

McKENDRY: There are a lot of petty jealousies. We do tend to work in groups. As for fear — I don't understand the mention of fear of each other, or pressure for that matter. How can you talk about fear in an area you like being involved in? To me coaching is a stimulating challenge, not something to be afraid of. The best performers come out on top in pressure situations.

SCHWAB: What do you think is the standard of Press eporting about soccer?

SCHWAB: What do you think is the standard of Press reporting about acces?

McKENDRY: Their job is to report the news, but too many invent the news. We are in a business that badly needs promoting. A great percentage of soccer reporting is opinion, much of it misinformed. It would prefer it to be more accurate and more involved with promoting the game. The Press should try to understand that everyone involved is trying to do his best and that mistakes are not intentional. There are different styles of play and it's important that the Press in particular appreciates the differences. Don't let's criticise the coaches for using a style they feel is best for their team. The English Press has changed from being diplomatic to being sensational and they reinforce the popular belief that soccer is a game of exciting highlights just like the TV replays. That's not so. It's about tough physical clashes, crunching tackles, hard running and various differently to the crunching tackles, hard running and various differently to the say that the standard of the standard

SCHWAB: You've said that Heldelberg appears to be the most closely analysed team in the PSL. Why is that?

McKENDRY: I'm interested to know why. We actually play against sides that start copying us half way through a game. I read so much about how one side or another will stop Cole and Paton, and we tend to play against defences of six or eight men. It's not all Cole and Paton, though. One day I'll tell you the real secret behind Heidelberg. That'll make a big story. Maybe we're analysed because our style is relatively new to the league.

SCHWAB: You mostly play against two markers on Cole and Paton, with a sweeper behind them.

McKENDRY: Yes, but Cole and Paton are coached with markers at their backs. That's no problem. They've come to terms with that.

SCHWAB: Unlike most other teams - with the exception of Olympic - you play the same way at home and away.

McKENDRY: Sure, what's the point in coaching players to do certain things when you ask them to do different things every second week when you play away? I don't see a need to change according to the opposition. Let the opposition do that If they want to Liverpool, Holland and West Germany at their peak never changed their style. They went at opponents all the time. Here, however, even Sydney City changes when It plays against us. I don't see the need. They have so many good players.

Iron fist

an iron fist, it may become downright dangerous to be insoccer.

In recent weeks we've seen referees and linesmen being besieged not only by angry fans but also by players and coaches, we've seen players fighting each other and even a club president fighting with a player.

club president tigating with a player. Not only does all this give soccer a bad name and keep away spectators, but it also adds to the overall farce in which soccer finds itself so much of the time. Witness, for example, the continuing iddocy of the PSL promotion and re-legation system which I will go

Like it or not, sport all over the world is being besieged by the violent element. It's a sad situation, but it has to be con-

The treatment given to the linesman during the Croatia v Blacktown Ampol Cup semi-final had to be seen to be believed. I admire him for having the courage to see out the match.

As for farcical elements in soccer — surely referees should take time out to study the rules of the various competitions before taking the field.

After our semi-final, some of our players went off to have a shower before the referee remembered about five minutes later that penalties should be taken.

The same thing happened at a Philips Cup match between Canberra and Sydney Olympic in Canberra, which led to the match having to be replayed. But getting back to security—it also would be appropriate to increase disciplinary action by the league against trouble-makers.

makers.

And among them I count players and club officials who become unruly.

Foul language for example should be stamped out on the fleld. Such language can be heard all over the ground, and it certainly offends the women who dare to attend matches.

Such language should be greeted by the yellow card every time.

The butchers among our players also should be punished much more heavily. Sure, body contact is part of the game, but the hit men who set out to injure their more seventh of the same, but the hit men who set out to injure their more except. At the moment, skill is not being protected in our society, and many players are getting away with murder.

But if players are expected focials must set the example of the fields in the set of the serious incidents of late.

An example of our poor disciplinary system was the case of the Sydney City player who, in front of the TV cameras, punched a Wollongong player, then made gestures to the crowd and tangled with an official of his own club after being sent off.

That player was fined $500. It is not appropriate, in my opinion, to inflict monetary fines. The player should have been suspended for a long time.

Strong guidelines must be set down immediately.
These guidelines should cover not only discipline, but also should clarify the PSL promotion-relegation set-up.

What the PSI should do is draw up a list of all those clubs that never can be relegated and all those that never will be premisted, no matter how many championships they win. At least it will be all out in the open then.

For example, the Adelaide and Brisbane teams, plus Canberra, Wollongong and Newcastle appear to be permanent fixtures in the PSL no matter how they finish in the league. West Adelaide should have been relegated twice, but was retained both times.

And so, it appears only Mel-bourne and Sydney clubs can be relegated — but not South bourne and sydney clubs can be relegated — but not South Melbourne Hellas which fin-ished last one year but escaped the drop

Blacktown coach Rale Rasic successfully appealed against his team's defeat on penalties by Sydney Croatia in the NSW Ampol Cup last week and the federation ruled that the match be replayed tonight (Wednesday) at Marconi Stadium at Marconi Stadium.

Rasic claimed that at the ned of extra time, with both sides deadlocked, his players left the field and started to shower. He claimed that some four and a half minutes after the end of extra time was whistled, the Blacktown players were informed that they had to return to the pitch to take part in a penalty showdown against Croatia.

As we went to Press the matter was far from resolved. Croatia has appealed against the result of Rasic's appeal and the former Socceroo supremo may have the right of appeal against the result of Rasic's appeal and show the result of Rasic's appeal and the former Socceroo supremo may have the right of appeal against Croatia's appeal and shown appeal to the thousands of fans to whom games between reserve sides held no appeal. D'Ottavi hits out

Bob D'Ottavi's name was synonymous with Adelaids City, until last week when he resigned as coach and John Perin took over.
D'Ottavi claimed that he didn't get full support from his committee It seems that David Mitchell's S0,000 transfer to Sydney City Hakoah two weeks ago was the straw which finally broke D'Ottavi's broad back

"Tet's just say that when you have a committee with such great experience and knowledge of soccer, unfortunately the only thing you can do is to resign." said D'Ottavi, obviously tongue-in-cheek.

"T've been with the club since Rale Rasic left a couple of years ago, It's no secret that 13 months ago we were $500, 600 in debt. In fact at one annual general meeting the members were told that we couldn't afford to run a PSL team the following year.

"The problem I had was that the people on the sports committee didn't really support me," said D'Ottavi. "The committee suggested to Mitchell that he go to Sydney to find a club. You can't do things like that. I told the committee that Mitchell was the only really top class striker we had. How could he be replaced? "In view of this I had to resign. I'm happy in one respect that no-one can say that I left Adelaide City in a worse state than when I came, although some of our supporters have very short memories."

D'Ottavi works for Adelaide City's main sponsor. The energy-sapping humidity of North Sumstra and the fervor of 30,000 screaming indonesian fans doesn't scare recently epointed West Australian state coach Hugh Miller.

West Adelaide coach Alan Vest was State coach then and miller was W A.'s sweeper.

Pagen shows his strength

George Pagen's his own man. His path toward a prestigious PSL coaching job won't be easy but you cant' help feeling that he'il get there in the end. He could have been there already. On countless occasions. But he consistently has refused offers from Brisbane City in recent years. He's an ambitious man but he wants to do its his way, which means nurturing a developing club, pushing, prodding, encouraging, until the club can stand on its own feet and almost demand of our administrators a place in the PSL.

That's the path Pagen hopes to tread with Queensland State League newcomer Nambour Reds.

Pagen came here I7 years

League newcomer Nambour Reds.
Pagen came heer 17 years ago after playing as a full back with Scottish club Hearts.
He became Queensland state coach in 1974, a position held for three years.
He also was coach of Brisbane Lions in those pre-PSL days and won three successive league championships for the club.
It came as a shock to Pagen

PSL.

That judgement prompted him to Join Grange Thistie in the State League. The brains trust at Lions must have been red-faced as Thistie captured every major homor in Queensland over a five-year period under Pagen's guidance.

Thistie was knocking on the five-year period under Pagen's guidance Thistle was knocking on the PSL door just over a year ago but its financial bubble burst in a big way last year. So much so that Thistle was forced to join an exodus of clubs from State League faced with mounting travel and accommodation costs.

"I was after money at the time, as were some players. The club simply seemed to have lost its drive to go PSL" said Pagen.

"I left Grange Thistle last December and the prospect of joining a new State League Club like Nambour was very inviting. In fact, in monetary terms, my three-year contract with Nambour, is a good as most coaching contracts in the PSL.

Not that money matters that much. Pagen's a successful insurance broker and real estate consultant.

Nambour has taken a big leap, out of the Sunshine Coast Soccer Association into State League.

The club's still disappointed that the SCSA didn't pool its resources and enter a composite club in State League but determined that the chance to step up to higher competition shouldn't be lost, Nambour Reds decided to go it alone.

Well, not exactly alone. You see there are the three millionaires supporting the club and Nambour's Yandina Sports Complex is valued at about $250,000. It consists of plush clubrooms and four pitches.

The club wil employ a pro-fessional fund raiser and local radio station 4NA is promoting all of Nambour's home games and social functions.

It probably will cost close to $100,000 to run the club this year and Pagen is optimistic about Nambour's future.

But remove these four talented boys with a Greek background . . and see the crowds plummet. (For heavens sake, don't really do it . . .)

Another sapect of this vexed problem is: can Australian soccer be built entirely on Australian-born players? Are we getting enough talent through the ranks to improve our standards?

dards?

We all know about the exciting crop of young talent which has surged to the surface in the past couple of seasons: the Hunters, Katholosos, Blairs and others.

But is there enough of them for 18 PSL teams and could they survive without occasionally being propped up by these controversal Imports?
Whatever the ASF does decide, it must be careful not to allow the PSL standards to drop.

If soccer is part of the enter-tainment business, we must ensure that the teams do entertain.

And if a Marton, Bradley, Vieri, Refern, Paton, Williamson and others can improve the entertainment quotient of the game, it would be a risky proposition to ban them. My unsolicited advice to the ASF is: don't act emotionally but examine the whole of the problem from all angles and consult those cub officials and coaches who really are in the know.

ceaches who really are in the know. ASF must protect to many along a sim, in the long-run, at the "Australianisation" of the game. But it must also protect soocer interests in the short term. An intelligent compromise based on knowledge is needed.

And while on the subject, let me dust off one of my pet suggestions.

And while on the subject, let me dust off one of my pet suggestions.

Why not introduce a tariff protection and import duty on temporary-visa players, whether the quota be three, four or five?

If a club really feels that a club can asset, let it be the judge, not an inflexible ASF rule.

At the same time, let that club contribute towards our junior coaching, programs and development by paying an import fee into a special kitty; say $500 for the first, $1000 for the second and $1500 for the third imported player.

The onus would be on the clubs to make sure that what they do import is quality and would end the lawsion of the 'dime à dozen' rubbish.

Sir Arthur George is known to be a master of compromise; let's hope he can persuade his

The biggest talking point in the clubhouse after Marconi had beaten Lions 1-0 last weekend was the weather... and in fact it is the most interesting thing I can find to write about the match.

the match.

It began in brilliant summer sunshine which made for humid, hot conditions which just might have been the reason why the two teams decided not to play entertaining football.

cided not to play entertaining football.

But then that excuse doesn't hold, for later in the match a storm blew across and dropped the temperature by about five degrees.

It would have been nice to think as semi-professionals and entertainers they could have put on some kind of show to give the paying public value for money. Lions' crowds are markedly down this year and matches like this one will do nothing to bring the fans back.

Lions started the match quite well and put together some determined stateks on the Marconi goal. But whether it was good goalkeeping from Alian Maher or sturdy defence Lions should at least be given credit for trying to do things but such was the lack of their application, and concen-their application and concen-tration that in the first half they probably passed more balls to Marconi than they did to their team-mates.

And that was lucky for Mar-coni, as apart from Hender-son, Calderan and Bozanic the rest of the team would have won few balls themselves.

For much of the game the match ran to a pattern which was so predictable it was boring.

boring.

Lions would play several short passes through midfield. Burns to Maclean to Hogg, maybe even wide to one of the fullbacks, then one of them would knock a long high ball into the penalty area.

Henderson would either out-jump Daunt and clear it or the lanky striker would get a touch which more times than not would fly anywhere but iff it went to a player, say William-son, he would twist and turn on the edge of the box, be dis-possessed and Marconi would bot the ball as far downfield as possible.

That kick was the signal for the Marconi forwards to get into position lan Hunter would stand next to Niven, Renato Licata would get ready to chase like a greyhound but would always know Col Bennett would get the ball in the end, and Joe Picioane would hide. The goal came only when Hunter decided to move away from Niven. Olympic's final tally of live goals is not a true reflection of their superiority and, on a conversion rate, is less than 25% of their chances.
Nevertheless it was a scintiliating exhibition of open, attacking soccer, particularly in the first 30 minutes when they literally tore the Brisbane City defence to shreds.

In the 5th minute Olympic went one up but the goal had a touch of luck about it. From the left wing a Rasko-poulous cross was deflected by a City defender to Redfern who nudged it onto the body of Wishart who could only parry the ball away to Koussas who buried it from point-blank range.

Redfern was having a field day with his immaculate skills and distribution and ability to lose his marker and roam at will. Close behind him were Katholos and Koussas, both of whom distributed the ball with great accuracy.

City's defence was in total disarray and it was no surprise when Olympic increased its lead in the 12th minute.

A free kick was pushed to Katholos and he lashed the ball with awesome power into the top corner of the net. Koussas, Katholos, Redfern and Jennings all missed good chances for the rampaging Olympians before a diving header by Rowden converted a corner in the 28th minute to give them an impregnable lead.

After the interval Olympic took some time to regain their rhythm and for a short period City almost looked like a team capable of putting up a fight. At least Conner was prepared to put in a little effort but his work was to no avail as his inept colleagues fumbled and stumbled around in an apparent state of shellshock. Koussas soored his second in the 64th minute after a rapid interchange of passes with Redfern who then had a goal disallowed in the 81st minute.

Three minutes later Koussas completed his hat trick as he ran onto an immaculate Ken Wilson pass and drew Wishart out before slipping the ball home.

Olympic played most of the game at 100 kph which is perhaps the reason why they missed so many chances. If they temper their enthusiasm with a little more use of their grey matter the goals will come in torrents.

Perhaps Makedonia would have done it more easily had Doug Brown not placed his early penalty—the first of three awarded in the game—too close to goalkeeper Willie McNally who saved it.

But then Adelaide City also had two glaring misses—both by Charlie Villani.

John Perin, in charge as coach for the first time since replacing Bob D'Ottavi midweek, was generally happy with Adelaide City's performance. Indeed, the back four was solld, and Brian Northcote and Glen Dods fought tigerishly to drive their team forward.

Makedonia had an early setback when George Todorovski, back after Injury and playing at centre back, aggravated that old injury and had to leave the ground after 25 minutes.

His presence meant that the reveius stopper, George McMillan, started the match in midfield. He made quite an impact there, pushing up as an extra forward and playing

Only once did they manage to break it, and that was midway during the lirst half, following a cross by John Bradley. seven metres went past the post Footscray managed to break through after a half hour in the first half, with Milan Kojic having a shot from an acute angle and Woodhouse failing to hold the ball. The rebound was quickly pushed into the path of oncoming Illioski who wasted no time in unleashing a powerful drive which beat Woodhouse but grazed the top of the crossbar.

A couple of minutes later Footscray should have scored. Jim Kondarios bombed Leichhard's defence for Paul Simic to race in and face Woodhouse, but alas with no pressure on him at all, the youngster hit a screamer past the post!

Kojic came close with his effort in the first serious attack in the second half, before JUST scored. It was Kojic who started pushing forward in the 72nd minute, but was brought down by an over-enthusiastic lan Gray. The free kick from some 45 metres and almost on the sideline was floated in for Paul Simic to have two goes at controlling the ball before unleasing an accuste drive from some 18 metres to find the corner of Woodhouse's goal.

With Leichhardt surging forward in greater numbers, Footscray struck again. Ign each process of the present of the first flank and just outside the box. Simic turned Skellern left flank and just outside the box. Simic turned Skellern before driving the ball across the area Woodhouse dived but missed and Kojic came in at the far post to nudge it in to make it 2-0.

It was all Footscray in the closing stages.

For those faithful JUST sup-porters in Sydney it was a case of "long time between drinks", but a handful of them showed their appreciation of JUST's style.

Canberra, aided by two for-tunate goals, stole a point from West Adelaide in an ex-citing 2-2 draw at Hindmarsh Stadium.

West led twice, but Can-erra came back.

Both goals were aided by deflections and considering that Canberra's second goal against Sydney City on the previous Monday was an own goal, the Arrows have certainly had luck on their side.

However, West also did well in the "luck" stakes.

Its second goal appeared to be offside.

Canberra, which has looked a more aggressive side since the aquisition of George Christopolos, showed it meant business from the kick-off.

Christopoulos charged his way through the defence and tested Martyn Crook with a modest shot.

The big, bearded midfielder combined well with Tony Brennan and Gary Byrne and had West on the run.

But the sting eventually went out of Canberra's game and it was West's turn to take over.

Graham Heys mesmerised defender John Moutsopoulos on one flank and Manecas was a handful for Angelo Abrosino on the other wing.

Meno Toutsidis

Tony Brennan's exit atter 40 minutes with a leg injury helped West's cause and just a minute from half time Heys sent another of those great crosses into the goal mouth for Manecas to score with a header.

er.
Canberra equalised in the 59th minute after Honeyman had given away a free kick.
He elbowed Christopoulos just outside the area.

Jan Purdie who had come on for Brennan, hit it, the ball took a deflection and slid into the bottom right corner just wide of Crook's outstretched hands.

The goal rattled West Adelaide and Canberra, with Christopoulos emerging from a 20 minute hibernation, again looked dangerous.

But if was West which struck again in the 74th minute when Heys squared the ball to Tim Brown who calmly slammed it into an open goal.

But Polonia was without live first team players who had accumulated suspensions during trial games.

The match was replay of last year's aborted Pederation Cup Final which was awarded to Azzurri when the Polonia team walked off atter 35 minutes after two of its players had been sent off. Stewart Blaim and Wally Bojczuk goaled for Azzurri who the Polonia officials were happy with their inexperienced line-up.

All suspended players will return to the team this week and most attention will fall on Polish recruit Jan Kierno.

If Kierno is as good as some of Polonia's past Polish recruits (club officials insist he is), Polonia will press Azzurri for honors this year.

Victorian stars to meet

New State coach Tim White has picked a star-studded 22-man squad for Victoria's match against English Second Division club Watford at Olympic Park on May 20.

"I have chosen the best available players with a view to drawing a good crowd and beating Watford," White said. He has abandoned the policy of former State coach Len McKendry who adhered to a set team for the three years of his League club Ajax, is assistant to Tim White, the VSF director of coaching.

o years age they Europe's best and since then they haven't been beaten in Europe. Now the Germans are after the world championship title - for the third time in their history, just like Brazil.

West Germany has big plans for the mundial, and what's more, common wisdon among the experts hold that the path to glory leads through Brazil.

Similarly the Brazilians fear Germany the most.

Similarly the Brazilians fear Germany the most.

The torrid Spanish summer may hold some unpleasant surprises for the Germans, who do not fancy heat-wave conditions. In their previous two title wins they triumphed in pouring rain in Berne 28 years ago against Hungary, and won in their home surroundings in 1974 over Holland.

Against this common superstition, it may be wise to recall that their Europear championship win in Italy was clinched in almost tropical heat. So, the weather conditions may not be a decisive factor this year. Most of the Germans' team building was well under way completed now. But, it is a different team from the one which finished on top in Italy,

There is also more than one hopeful for most positions in the team. Manager Jupp Derwall's greatest problem is not who to put in, but rather who to leave out.

Derwell has been in charge since September 1978 and it is as well to remember that being West German manager is usually a long-term occupation.

His greatest initial achievement to convert a penalty klck.

In rhe World Cup qualifiers the Federal Republic finished an unbeaten first in its group, winning all its matches home and away against Austra, Bulgaria, Albania and Finiand.

In Spain Algeria, Chile and — one again — neighbor Austria provide the initial opposition in Group 2, but there isn't a person who doesn't expect West Germany to win the zroup with something to spare. The European champjon team was Schemacher — Kaltz, K. Foerster, Stielike, Dietz. — Briegel (Culliman), Schuster, H. Mueller — Rummenigge, Hrubesch, K. Allofs.

Other players who appeared in matches prior to the final included B. Foerster. Magath, Memering, Votava and Del Haye. All of them are available for selection, but it is not certain that Derwall will pick them again.

FC Koeln's Rainer Bonhof (1948). This depth of talent will allow Derwall to rest some of his players whenever needed, especially in view of the virtual certainty that West Germany will have many more games to paly than just the three in Round One.

The forward line also provides op-portunities for the formation of sev-eral lines of equal ability — almost like in ice hockey.

like in ice hockey.

Three central strikers of the calibre of Hrubesch (1951), Fischer (1949) and Hoeness (1953), cannot take the field at the same time, and in addition young Frank NiII (1961) of Moenchengladback is already seeking to lay claim to the position.

Seeking to lay claim to the position.

Then there is twice European Player of the Year Karl-Heinz Rummenigge (1955) who can play on either wing or in the centre. Many consider him a better player than even Maradona, which would make him the World's No. 1, but it would be futile to argue the point — the mundial will decide.

On the other hand, there can be no argument that Koein's Pierre Littharski (1980) is by far the best right winger in Germany today. If his development continues he can become one of the world's best, unlike Ruediger Abramczik (1986) who has not lived up to his early promise since leaving Schalke. He is presently with Dortmund and has publicly stated his ambition to be in Spain.

Just by the way, Abramczik is considered a leading light among those West German international players who were caustically described by Gunter Netzer recently, as "Businessmen who play soccer as a hobby".

Another to come into calculations is Abramczik's clubmate Manfred Burgsmuller (1949), who is always among the goals in the Bundesliga, but not on international duty, where he hardly ever is considered for selection.

Finally, Koeln's Klaus Allofs (1956) must come into calculations on the left wing, as the leading scorer of the European Championships.
The permutations are almost endless and trying to work out the right combinations is a waste of time.

Sunshine goes into Sunday's big game against Juventus chockful of confidence according to joint coach Steve

"We'll beat Juventus at Olympic Park on Sunday because we're the best footballing side in State League," side Gaw watched Juventus against Croatis he would have been even more confident of success, if that were possible. I think that Gaw and Sunshine may have to settle for a draw against one of the best back lines in State League. If not for Vince and Paddy Bannon, Harry Hird and Peter Donaldson's persistence, then Croatia could have run up a big scoreline on Sunday.

This weekend this defensive quartet faces up to Norrie Pate, John Mudrinic and Chris Taylor.

Hird probably will look after Mudrinic and I expect the Juventus left back to do well.

The battle between Donaldson's hate could be close.

crucial role in setting up a result for the black and whites.

Vince Bannon was strangely loathe to overlap against Croatia. Indeed, without his surges down the right Juventus looked pretty inept going forward.

Sunshine's success this season has been based upon its discipline and organisation as a team unit, two features of soccer absent from Juventus's performance last weekend.

Hellas-Hakoah could come unstuck against Croatia at Middle Park.

Croatia undefeated in the league, is starting to put it together and team selection seems to have stabilised.

Josip Biskic was a minor revelation against Juventus, Jozo Antolovic did well but was put under pressure and Steve Kokoska's presence gave the defence an air of solidity lacking in recent times.

Antolovic's selection enabled Keth Adams to move up into midfield. The midfield trio—Biskic, Adams, and Jeff Faulkner—looks very mobile and skillul.—Antolovic can hold down his place as sweeper then Croatia looks like it is starting to mould a genuine title contender together.

Big Tom Patsakos hit the goal trail twice last week against struggling Northcote but facing up to state stopper Kokoska is a rather different proposition.

Kokoska s. a Tuther different proposition.

Lexpect Croatia to win. Croydon Park hasn't been the happiest of hunting grounds for champion Ajax. Inexperienced Graham Haupt has done well in recent weeks as sweeper for Croydon however he will face a stiff test trying to stop speedy Paul Lewis running through on to the end of the good work by big Gus Macleod and the creative Ajax midfield. Then there's Welsh international David Smallman to content with He scored twice last Sunday and although taken off due to injury should be fif for the Croydon's ace striker Ian Loughnane had a groin injury and was unable to play against Doveton last weekend but he too should be fully recovered in time for Sunday's clash. Morwell Faleons can take a point from their trip to Selwyn Park on Saturday.

Tony van Baar's return.

With Noel Mitten and Richie McClunie up front and the tire-less, creative John O'Callaghan in centre midfield, suddenly Falcons aren't as bad off as we all thought they were at the start of the season.

Ken Smart is starting to really hit his straps for Albion though and Falcons player-coach Dave O'Connor will be hoping that Sandy Irvine recovers from injury in time for Saturday's game.

George Cross must beat Northcote at Chaplin Reserve on Saturday or else face a season of obscurity in the lower reaches of the league.

The Cross should win, especially if Carl Gilder can be signed from Croatia to play as target man with Bobby Toal working off of him.

Northcote was talking about buying five new players this week. That's about how many are needed to turn the North-erners into a decent outfit.

Doveton still searches for its first point of the season. It faces up to visitor Polonia at Waratah Reserve on Sunday and must grab at least a point.

I'll stick with the Doves for Don't get me wrong. I've got nothing against Mike de Bruyckere's lads. It's just that there's a bit of money riding on the winner of our poll and I'd like those few dollars to travel in my direction.

I hope Joe Tront has an ab-solutely hopeless game. So too with Dave Hoyland and Dave Gibson. And if a couple of de-fensive lapses can creep into the Wilhelmina back four I'll be thoroughly delighted.

The principal feature of Juve's game was its never ending ability to give the ball away. It was astonishing to watch Fabio Incantalupo, Ged Bannon and three or four other Juve players playing balls either to opponents or into space with no Juve team mate in sight.

At the other end of the path Harry Hird shone like a beacon at the back. He easily was Juve's best. He even took time off from giving Ossie Latif a terrible beating to intercept many halls and start Juve going forward once more.

However, as it turned out, Hird was wasting his time. He Juventus midfield was almost non-existent. "Rocky" Tachiris didn't cost George Cross a penny when he joined two weeks ago from Northcote and last Sunday against arch rival Ajax young Tachiris was in great touch. Four times in the second half he confronted quicksilver Ajax striker Paul Lewis and won every time.

Ajax however and or conditional proved to be the better team Ajax midfleider Aian Bennett chipped the ball over a square Cross defence in the 30th minute and former Welsh international David Smallman just beat Tachiris in the race and tapped the ball under the keeper's body to give Ajax the lead.

Falcons completely dominated the first half and could have gone in five goals up at the break. For long periods Polonia found itself pinned inside its defensive half.

A Dave Perkin corner in the 20th minute led to Falcons opening goal. Noel Mitten and Tony van Baar made runs to the near post Mitten missed with his attempt to head but not van Baar. The blond headed youngster smacked with a fearsome header.

John O'Callaghan won the ball in midfield in the 38th minute, passed to Perkin out wide on the right, who in turn played a first time ball into Mitten. The former Croatia striker flicked it past Stan Klain who was fractionally slow in arriving and downed Mitten. Penalty to Falcons. Perkin made no mistake.

Faster, sharper Hamlyn Rogers soon set home side Sandringham back on its heels with two goals in the first 20 minutes.

A defensive error by Brian Greenwood allowed quick-silver Henry Virt to gain pos-session, carry the ball inside the area then unleash a piledri-ver which sent the ball thud-ding into the top corner.

Three minutes into the second half Nydam was sent off. The Hamlyn keeper kicked the half away in disgust at a free kick given against him. Surely he wasn't sent off solely for that misdemeanour.

Metro Second Division club St Albens Dinamo is up in arms over a Waveri-ey player who got among the goals in Dinamo's 4-2

Dinamo president Miro Heges claims that the Waverl-ey player was allowed to play pending the hearing of his appeal against a three week suspension. Heges claims that this opens the door to abuse by players and clubs of player suspensions.

He was seeking legal advice as we went to press with the view to challenge the VSF's decision to allow the Waverley player to play pending his appeal hearing. Heges be-lieves that the player in ques-tion should have been in-eligible to play.

Falcons kicked off at the start of the second half and immediately played the ball back to keeper Whiteside. This typified their attitude now. Polonia took over and Falcons often found themselves pinned inside their defensive half.

The second half dual harms.

now. Polonia took over and Falcons often found themselves pinned inside their defensive half.

The second half duel between Alex Marshall's awesome shooting power and Whiteside's brilliance was enthraling.

Whiteside made six or seven absolutely superb saves in this half. One of them, a split second change of direction and a full length dive to tip over a Marshall shot deflected by O'Callaghan, was little short of magnificent. Another Marshall piledriver, destined for the top far corner was somehow tipped wide by the acrobatic Falcons keeper.

Polonia reduced the deficit in the 70th minute. Janusz Przybyła ummied in midfleld and set up Tad Krysinski who raced clear and shot. Whiteside blocked the shot but couldn't stop Przybyla, following in, from tucking away the rebound.

Sandy Irvine's injury and substitution robbed Falcons of its defensive discipline and organisation at the back for the last 30 minutes yet Polonia was unable to pass Whiteside again and snatch a point.

One word about linesman Tony McHugh. The official linesman didn't appear. McHugh had refereed an Industrial League game on Sunday morning, and the Harry Armstrong Cup match which was the curtain raiser to this Polonia v Falcons affair, yet he had no hesitation in running the line when asked.

the-ball run taking defenders with him and Loughnane charged forward, beating one defender than letting fly and sending the ball whistling past Lou Ivanoff from 12 metres and into the near corner.

That was after 15 minutes. It was to prove the decisive goal of the game. Jimmy Daperis, the former Hellas, Albion Rovers and Western Suburbs play-er, made his debut for the Doves when he replaced Steve Bone at half time and little Daperis sparked some life into the Doves.

Yet Doveton's strikers weren't pre-pared to take on the responsibility of having a crack at goal and Croydon keeper Mick Edwards rarely was under pressure.

Goalscorer Virt took over between the sticks but yet an-other poor pass back, this time from young Robert Mels, en-abled Kelly to nip in and shoot. Virt got a hand to the ball but only could deflect it out to the centre of the area and the in-coming Jimmy Armstrong did well to slot the ball away under pressure from two de-fenders on either side.

Charlie Hendry snatched two points for the home side with a fine header from Arm-strong's inswinging corner in the 75th minute.

Several hundred spectators turned out at Holland Park to see what should have been an exciting and closely fought garme. The score-line does not re-flect on the overall superiority of the home side.

South Dandenong beset by sickness and injuries were very much under strength.

At half time yet another of their better players had to be replaced because of injury. South were struggling for most of the game in all departments and only after they scored their goal did they add a little more life and purpose to the game. But still lacking in skill and. The turning point of the game came 20 minutes into the second half when Thomas-town's centre half was sent Thomastown immediately raised its game and with Eltham content to back-pedal, got right on top and scored twice through Brooks in the 74th and 80th minutes.

But still lacking in skill and ideas, predictably, West Brunswick had little to do in holding out to the final whistle.

At the other end of town, Manly Warringah kept their defensive record intact after a goalless draw with Crostia, to remain the only unbeaten team in the State Leagual to get its second point of the season while JM United was beaten at home by Canterbury and is now the last placed side.

Riverwood subdued Rock-dale at Hurstville last Saturday to keep its challenge for the top, while a Paul Kirwin goal lifted Blacktown into fourth spot, just one point away from Manly Warringah.

"I knew we were going to hammer someone soon." was the comment by an elated Steve Lalic, the coach of Avala, after the tricolours, thrashed Melita Eagles at Knight Park.

"We should have picked up at least seven out of ten point in the first five rounds, since we placed well and created opportunities. But my forwards just could not put those chances away. Today we missed a few but we put away a few and that was the difference," said Lalic.

He had every reason to be happy. His team surged forward in the first half to subducthe much fancled Melita Eagles. As early as the 16th minute McPherson had to dig the ball out of the neath of the said with the said of t

Peter Falconer broke through to face Watson but his shot from some eight to 10 metres sailed over the bar, much to the relief of the strong Croatia following. Earlier on Manly could have gone into the lead through Robbie Stuart, following a neat header by Regan, but the Manly forward shot too soon and hit Sterry on Croatia's goal line with the rest of the goal badly exposed and Watson well out of goal.

So Manly keeps their detensive record intact. The only undefeated team and the one at the top of the league. Next week they travel to Arlington Oval then they are back at Cromer Park for what is billed as the Rale Rasic versus Mick Jones Clash, against Blacktown Demons.

By Peter Scott IN FOCUS

Some of our readers may be beginning to wonder whatever has happened to the eagerly awaited first ever Hungarian import of St George Budapest.

On the other hand, many of you may have already forgotten the story about Lajos Koritar's impending arrival which was penned by me last January.

was penned by me last January.

Well, all isn't lost!

Koritar was, as of last Friday, expected to arrive within a week.

It seems bureaucracy is having a field day, according to St. George officials, who are beginning to wonder whether the former "B" international midfleider was ever supposed to become their player?

For once it seems we can't blame Iron Curtain inefficiency, either.

It is the lack of an Australian visa which is delaying the proceedings.

The British Embassy in Budapest, which represents Australian interests, is showing spectacular disregard for the urgency of the matter.

represents disregard for the urgency of the matter.

Chest X-rays are taking an inordinate time in reaching London — that's right, London is the place where there is a little man who must carefully look at the prints — and, generally speaking, just about anything that can happen to hold up proceedings, is happening. In the meantime Koritar has sold his home, packed his bags, dropped out of his club, MIK's team and gathered around him his family of wife and son, ready for departure. That was months ago.

Since then (shock, horror) he has had to move in with his mother-in-law and look for a way of salvaging his match fitness until arrival in the Promised Land, opps, Sydney. Luckity, MIK in its headlong chase for promotion back into First Division, had a few slip-ups.

promotion back into First Division, had a few slip-ups. Luckily for our suffering hero, that is. Last week Koritar, after a break of several team.

In the meantime, St George officials are tentatively hoping that he will land in Sydney in a week, or two weeks.

But, they and all the Hungarian soccer fans in Sydney have stopped taking bets on the matter.

Isn't it high time that the PSI. has done something drastic about the widespread handwringing and general sour grapes by coaches regarding refereeing standards?

While our refs may not be world beaters, even a trusting soul like myself can't help getting a teeny-weeny bit cynical lately.

I mean, I'm seriously considering starting a register of coaches who whinge about the main the middle—after they lose a match. Moreoever, the losers keep claiming that the winning coach agrees with them—except we never bear the winning the properties of the league Management to investigate all these complaints of 'the worst display of refereeing ever seen'. If the claims are true, do something about them.

If me claims are true, do sometaing about them.

If not, tell the coaches to belt up and don't leave the referees condemned by default.

Do I recall the NSW Soccer Federation accusing PSL clubs of sabotaging the Ampol Cup?

Why would they, I wonder?

After all, the State Federation is managing to put on another spectacular display of administrative hara-kiri.

It was bad enough that there was a muck.

It was had enough that there was a muck up once before over what happens at drawn Ampol Cup matches, but, lo and behold, the exact same thing happened again this year in the Blacktown v Croatia semi-final. Has anyone ever suggested to the controlling body that it may be a good idea to polish the rules of the competitions under its aegis BEFORE they actually commence? Sounds like a good idea, doesn't tit!

It is a winy of derishing jumor coaches with a number of new ideas to help them train their young players on training nights. recent weeks about the exciting sponsorship from McDonalds Family restaurants of Australia. But what does it all mean to junior players and clubs apart from the incentive of gaining awards and certificates?

Soccer at this level is such an enjoyable and simple game. All you need is a ball and a few friends and at the drop of a couple of tracksuit tops, to act as goals, there will be a game. If it were that easy to get players to prac-tice the basic skills the game would be a lot better off.

That is why we should all welcome the McDonalds Super Skills award scheme. Playing is always more attractive than practicing but this incentive scheme will help make practicing more attractive than before.

Many coaches work on a misguided notion that practice makes perfect.

We would like to add a further incentive to the scheme by arranging the examinations for awards to become special occasions.

These occasions hopefully would have more significance with the presence of international, Philips League and State League players and coaches.

NEW YORK — Professional soccer in the United States faces a critical season this year following the collapse of one-third of the teams in the North American Soccer League.

The plight of the NASL can be traced to several factors:

Beckenbauer is finished, Ardiles goes back home

From JIM COOK our European correspondent

Beckenbauer, who captained West Germany when it beat the Netherlands in the 1974 World Cup final, was injured playing for Hamburg against Stuttgart. He was in hospital for 10 days. The 36-year-old sweeper plans to resume training early next month but does not expect dto play again in the Bundesliga. "It isn't to be," he said.

Beckenbauer, capped a record 103 times for West Germany, had hoped to return to the national side for the World Cup finals in Spain.

But a spate of injuries have marred the final season in a career in which he led Bayern Munich and West Germany to world and European titles before moving to New York Cosmos.

He will have a testimonial match in Hamburg on June 1 before embarking on a job with a mass circulation newspaper during the World Cup finals.

Osvaldo Ardiles, Spurs' Argentine midfield star, flew back home almost immediately after the Cup-holder had beaten Leicester City and reached the final of the F A Cup for the second year running Ossie, as he is better known, left as pre-arranged some time ago to join Cesar Menotti's World Cup squads in preparation for its defence of the tiftle in Spain.

It was originally hoped that Ardiles would be allowed back for Tottenham's F A Cup final against Queens Park Rangers at Wembley on May 22, but now, in view of the position between Britain and Argentina, it could be that the little midfield master will never don a Spurs shirt again which, to say the least, is a big loss to Spurs and to British soccer.

Ardiles, who has over 30 international caps for Argentina, joined Spurs in August 1978 and had played over 180 games for them. He was accompanied on his way home by his wife Sylvia and their son Frederico, 3, after having left their Hertfordshire home and wide circle of friends with a heavy heart.

Steve Perryman, the Spurs skipper, said "he's a smashing little fellow and a great player"

"Ossie has been a shining example to every footballer who plays abroad". He joined Spurs from Cordoba.

Asa Hartford, the Scotland World Cup skipper, has come under fire by his club manager John Bond of Manchester City. Bond, highly critical of Hartfords and Solary of the past coupte in months, says: "Frankly I dot see how Jock Stein can pick him."

Hull City players Nicky Deacy and Mickey Horswill have joined Hong Kong side Happy Valley on free transfers. Hull is in the hands of the receiver.

Chelsea's financial worries are over now the club has been sold to millionaire Keith Bates who has become a director of the club and is tipped to take over from Viscount Chelsea as chairman in the forseeable future. Chelsea is $3 million in the red, mostly due to payments for its new stand but Ken Bates, who was previously associated with fourth division Wigan Athletic, has arranged substantial sums to ensure the club's future.

David Fairclough, 25, the Liverpool super sub for the past two seasons, who has been out of contention, is the latest player to join Bob Houghton's star-studded Toroato Bizzards for $300,000.

A slight but unexpected decline in attendance

• Poor television ratings:
• The failure of the U.S. national team to reach the World Cup finals:
• And a miscalculation by the NASL a few years ago in deciding to expand the league rapidly

As a result, the NASL opened its l6th season with only 14 teams, down from 21 last year and a high of 24 the year before, making a mock-ery of Commissioner Phil Woosnam's boast that "soccer is the game of the 80's."

Gone is the last of the original founder clubs, the Dallas Tornadoes, which shut up shop along with the Atlanta Chiefs, Calgary Boomers. Callfornia Surf, Los Angeles Aztees, Minnesota Kicks and Washington Diplomats.

nesota Kick's and Washington Diplomats.
With clubs losing a total of about 30 million U.S. (28.2 million Aust) dollars last year, the American Broadcasting Corporation (ABC) dollars last year, the American Broadcasting Corporation (ABC) network ending its agreement to televise games, and costs rising while aftendance was slipping, the seven owners took the vlew it was time to stop throwing good money took the view it was time to top throwing good money after bad and cut their losses. But the ever-confident Woosnam rejects any comparison with the 1998 season, when the league shrank to five clubs in another fiirtation with oblivion. He insists that in fact the loss of the seven clubs will prove to be "a very positive step for the league." The expartirate Welshman argues that two critical factors for the NASL are average attendance and television ratings, and that an increase in the former will assist the latter.

the former will assist the later.

"We believe the agerave attendance will increase this year because the mainty low attendance clubs will not be operating." Woosnam said in an interview.

Woosnam conceded that average attendance declined last season, but nited it still remained above 14,000 for the fourth consecutive year. For this year, with the legue leaner but the clubs stronger, be said the was looking for a 25 per cent increase to 17,000—and that was only the beginning.

the kind of boom at the professional level that the National Football League experienced in the 1969s, 'Woosnam said. ''I believe average attendance will be 30,000 to 40,000.'' This would give the NASL valuable ammunition in its hunt for a lucrative network television contract.

ABC television has carried selected NASL games in the past few seasons, but has dropped its option as the ratings — like those for ice hockey, golf, tennis and many aother sports — have been below those for so-called "junk sports usuch as supers the seasons of the s
